CONTENDER LAUNCHED SATURDAY

An Olympic contender for the 5.5 meter class was launched on Saturday at Burr Bros. in Marion. Pictured above is the Charade, a boat that area sailors will watch with interest in the coming Olympic trials to be run off in Narragansett Bay in mid-June. The boat is a Britton Chance, Jr. designed craft and he will skipper her. She was commissioned by a syndicate headed by Mr. Chance and by his uncle, James Earle from the Allan H. Vaitses Associates, Inc. of Mattapoisett Neck.

The Charade is now back in the yard for some finishing touches and will be shipped on Thursday to Oyster Harbors, Long Island to tune up for the trials. The winner of the eliminations in June will represent the United States in the next Olympics to be held in Japan this September.

ALL'S WELL AT #3 IN TINKHAMTOWN

Water; cool, clear water is the subject of a careful examination now being conducted in the Tinkhamtown section of Mattapoisett. It was about ten years ago that the town, concerned over a growing demand for water started an exhaustive search for a new supply. The result of the hunt was pumping station #3, a bonanza of a water well, which has been faithfully pouring the liquid into the town mains ever since. It is the main supplier of Mattapoisett water. This pump is capable of adding 650 gallons of water per minute to the system, but recently the capacity has slowed to about 580 gallons per minute. So, the well is now undergoing its first interruption of service for examination and cleaning. That is the reason for the ban on the use of town water through May 22nd.

Pumping station #2 is now the sole supplier of water to the system. Number 1 is not in operation.

There is a basic difference in the first two wells and the third. Numbers 1 and 2 are built with fingers of small bore pipe each finger tipped with a screen head. These fingers are connected by Ts to a central pipe and a vacuum is created which draws the water through the fingers and into a terminal pipe from which it is drawn off by a pump. The new #3 station has a well which is gravel packed. When built, a pipe 6 foot in diameter was sunk into the ground for the 68 foot depth. Then a central core of about half that diameter was placed inside. The bottom section of this core is a series of "donuts" which are bolted together. Each section of "donut" is milled to leave 1/4" slots spaced around the whole core at regular intervals. This slotted bottom section is several feet long and forms the screen for the water to come through. With the central core placed, the area between it and the 6 foot diameter pipe was filled with special gravel some of which came from as far as Pennsylvania. Once the gravel was in place, the outside 6 foot diameter pipe was removed leaving the central core surrounded by the packed gravel.

In the operation which began last week the crane moved in to lift away the pump and its pipe from this core. Each section was hoisted through the man hole in the pumping station roof, then was unscrewed and removed. Each section of pipe will be cleaned and painted. After the core of the well was clear of pipe, a closed circuit television camera was lowered into the well. This enabled the operators to examine the inside of the well, all the seams, the screen and finally the bottom. At various points, polaroid pictures were taken of the TV screen so that a visual record of the examination could be kept for study later.

By the end of the overhaul period this pump should be back in first class condition. Mr. Frederick T. LeBaron, superintendent, expects that the well should be right back to its rated output. Certainly, it is a convincing demonstration of the value of the television camera as a tool in the hands of industry.

THE BOTTOM OF THE WELL

This is a polaroid photograph of the television screen which carried the transmission from the well at Station #3 at Tinkhamtown. In this shot the TV camera is suspended about 64 feet down under about 58 feet of water. The slots of the screen can be seen very clearly. Through these slots the water enters the well. On the bottom, you can see the pebbles and a mysterious object shaped something like a ping pong paddle. The light lines are the centering point of the camera.

first home game the Greens defeated the Blues in a well played and well pitched game. Stephen Cadieux for the Blues turned in a good pitching performance which was overshadowed by the superb pitching of Timmy Smith of the Greens, who also belted a home run to help his team's victory. The pitching performance of these boys makes the future of Mattapoisett teams a lot brighter towards the league championship. The Reds lost an error filled game 8-2 to the Eagles while the Cubs defeated Rochester 7-5 in extra innings. On Thursday the Greens tied the Cubs 10-10 in a game which will be replayed in the future. Eagles continued on the winning trail by defeating the Rochester Royals 7-0.

PLAYS PRESENTED AT OLD ROCHESTER

A delightful 60 minutes of "An Afternoon at the Theater" was presented with three one-act plays well done and well received by the audience. The proceeds will be used for "The Owl", the Old Rochester Regional High School paper. The plays were directed by Llewellyn Roberts, head of the English Department at the regional high school.

The first play was a light comedy entitled "Red Carnations" by Glenn Hughes with the cast comprised of three persons, Kenneth Mosakowski, Phillip Marcosa and Wendi Hayes. The setting was at a park with Wendi having made a blind date with Phillip. Wendi was supposed to know him by the red carnation he wore. Complicating the plot was the red carnation worn by Kenneth also. Situation solves itself in the end when Wendi announces Kenneth is her father, who was keeping a "fatherly eye" on his daughter's date.

The next play, "Thursday Evening", by Christopher Morley was a domestic drama about a married couple and the two mothers-in-law, producing a sticky situation. Clark Springgate and Sue Sherman play the young married couple with Esther-Ann Chamberlain the girl's mother

The mothers-in-law decide to pretend each of their children is overworked and to have their married daughter and son, respectively, come back to live with them. They mimic Clark's and Sue's quarrels, so they can be overheard by the young couple, with the result the differences are patched up.

The last play on the program was "Sorry, Wrong Number", by Lucille Fletcher, a hair-raising tale of terror in the night. Agnes Moorhead made it famous on radio and Barbara Stanwyck in the movies. Kathleen Bowditch gave an excellent performance as Mrs. Tevenson, the bed-ridden wife, who overhears a murder plot on the telephone. She does not realize she is the victim. The suspense of the play reaches a tremendous pitch with all students giving an excellent performance.

The students taking part in "Sorry, Wrong Number," included Darleen Rech, Daniel Hebert, Beverly Perry, Elizabeth Maxwell, David Baker, David Sylvia, Miss Mesarch, Garcia Hillman, Miss Hayes and Mosakowski. Those assisting with the staging of the play were Miss Janet Miller, makeup; Charles Days, lighting; Ann Lacey, tickets; Barbara Strawn, program; and Dorothy Silva and Miss Strawn, publicity. Special thanks go to Chester Dufrane of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company for his valuable assistance in the use of the telephones for "Sorry, Wrong Number."

Mr. Roberts, the director, told the audience the high school students had only two weeks for rehearsal prior to putting on the plays. He commended all the students for the hard work they put into the rehearsals.
